

School Notes.

By P. M. Allison County Superintendent of Schools.

Mr. Jan. Wendleton, of Enterprise district in Spruce township, was in last week and reported that they had cleaned up their yard and looked after the fencing. They are going to clean up and do their part toward a good school. We are quite sure they will have a first class school for where the patrons are interested in the school work it is much easier for the teacher.

Down at Happy Hill, in Pleasant Gap township they have had the school house painted and the yard well cleaned up and excepting the cleaning of the school room they are ready for school to open, Sept. 6th. Compton school, in Deepwater township, is ordering more library books and they are doing so before school opens that they may have the use of them during the entire term. This school should have some new furniture but we believe they will secure this as soon as they are able to do so, or at least we hope they will anyway.

Olive, in Shawnee township, is at work on the new building now. It is to be one of the most modern and up-to-date in the county. This is the district in which the proposition carried without a dissenting vote. The old building was not very good but better than some that are in use yet.

Quite a number have been making inquiry concerning the subjects for ninth grade work in the country schools for this year. I am suggesting the following: Ancient History, Myers; Algebra, Marsh; English, Stebbins; First year, Agriculture, Warren, Reading Circle Edition. The first three must be used in all schools in the county excepting Butler which has adopted a different set of books. The Agriculture is suggested because the teachers will use this in the reading circle work and will become familiar with the book through this work and will not have to go to extra expense of buying a new book as a text in teaching.

We are quite pleased to know that a number of our most up-to-date farmers have signified their intention of entering the reading circle of their township during the study of agriculture. We invite them to do this and assist in any way they can. This will do them much good and their actual experience on many things will be of great benefit to the teachers of the county. They cannot do the teaching force a greater service than in this way and not only will they benefit the teachers but we are quite sure they will get something worth while for themselves. The teaching of agriculture is one of the newest in our course, but one of the most important, especially to the farmer and farmers children and no one can help more on getting good results than the farmer himself.

Miss Eisle Williams has been employed to teach the Johnson school, in Homer township, she taught the primary grades at Merwin last year. Miss Williams is one of our best teachers and Johnson may feel proud to secure her services.

The summer school grades are coming in and we are pleased to say that our teachers have done well and the grades indicate that they were in school for the purpose of becoming better teachers. We cannot help but believe the schools will be much better as a result of this fact.

Prof. Rayborn, formerly school commissioner of this county but now of Littleton Colo., was a pleasant caller Saturday. Mr. Rayborn feels an interest in Bates county schools and teachers yet, and many inquiries were made concerning the teachers, who were in the work when he was at the head of the schools, but we find that most of them have changed occupations or entered the work in some other state as Mr. Rayborn has done. We are pleased to announce that he will be present at at least one session of the August meeting and give us an address.

Life of Gov. Johnson

The life-story of the "Great Governor of Minnesota" is the most inspiring story of the life of a real man that has been published in this generation.

The late governor was characterized as the most lovable man in public life since the days of Abraham Lincoln, and his biography is instructive, inspirational and thrilling.

The "Life" was published by authority of the widow, and in her benefit. The authors and publishers were intimate friends of the late governor, one of them, Mr. Day, being his private secretary.

The book contains 430 type pages and 22 pages of illustrations, or 452 pages all told, and is a perfect specimen of the best printing and binding.

CENTRAL BUSINESS COLLEGE, SEDALIA, MO.

A large firm employing one of the Central Business College pupils, in Kansas City, before making the contract wished to know what school she was graduated from. She stated "Central Business College, Sedalia, Mo." Said he, "You are alright. I have tried several of them and they have all made good." Another was asked after she had brought the first batch of letters in that had been dictated to her, what school she was graduated from: Stating Central Business College, Sedalia, Mo., she was told by her employer that he would employ stenographers from that school only, in the future, stating that she was the only stenographer that he had had who could read and transcribe her notes exactly as they were dictated.

It is no uncommon thing to receive letters from prominent business men in St. Louis, Kansas City, Chicago, Rochester, New York City and many other cities of the United States stating that they can get better stenographers and bookkeepers from Central Business College, Sedalia, Mo., than they can get from their home schools.

The graduate of Central Business College, is placed in a position at from fifty to seventy-five per cent higher salary than is the graduate of any other business college in the state.

The above conditions do not come from the fact that Central Business College has a corner on education, but they come from the fact that for twenty-five years the President of this school has been doing everything that could be done by the aid of money, previous experience, energy and close application to his business to give the pupil every advantage in the shortest, best and most up-to-date methods to be had, and furnish him all of the labor saving apparatus that is necessary to enable him to do the most work in the shortest possible time. He has also reduced everything in his school to actual business work so that the pupil learns to do by doing, just as he would if he were in a first-class, well regulated and systematic business house. Not being satisfied with this, he employs teachers only who have had actual business experience at high salaries with the best business firms, in the subjects that they are teaching. Persons who have not only proven themselves by actual test, thorough and competent, but have proven themselves persons of more than ordinary tact and ability. Such teachers come high but Central Business College, in order to be the most practical and best in the United States must have them.

Added to this, the President of this school since he founded it over twenty-seven years ago, has kept the school room open from seven in the morning till nine at night every day in the year except Sundays, where the pupil can be practicing on the typewriter and putting in extra time on the mechanical work, that requires such a large amount of time to acquire speed enough to compete with experienced help.

Now at this day comes the Plaintiff herein by his Attorneys and files his Petition and Affidavit, alleging among other things that Defendant J. M. Shelby is a non resident, of the State of Missouri.

Whereupon it is ordered by the Clerk in Vacation that said defendant be notified by publication that Plaintiff has commenced a suit against him, et al, in this Court, by petition and attachment, founded upon an installment note for sum of $125.75 dollars, that the property of the said J. M. Shelby, the defendant above named, has been attached, and that unless he, the said J. M. Shelby, be and appear at this court, at the next term thereof, to be begun and holden at the court house, in the city of Butler, in said county, on the third day of October next, and on or before the first day of said term, answer or plead to the petition in said cause, the same will be taken as confessed, and judgment will be rendered accordingly.

And be it further ordered, that a copy hereof be published according to law, in the Rich Hill Tribune a weekly newspaper printed and published in Bates County, Mo., for four weeks successively, the last insertion to be at least thirty days before the first day of the next term of the Circuit Court.

State Fair, Sedalia, Oct. 1 to 7.

The regular school hours in this institution are from eight in the morning till twelve, one-thirty p.m. till four, seven p.m. till nine, with Saturday forenoon added. During these hours the pupil may be in the school room practicing on the typewriter, securing a high rate of speed, ruling up his books, practicing on rapid business figuring or rapid business transactions. Is it any wonder that the Central Business College student, who spends six to twelve months in this institution, knows more that will make him useful to a business firm, than does the student who attends the other business colleges of the United States, where he can be in the school room only from nine in the morning till twelve, one-thirty to four, five days in the week. Is it reasonable that he can learn as much about the little details of office work in this short time as he can in twice the length of time in Central Business College?

On the fifth day of September regular recitations will begin in all of the different studies so that pupils who desire to enter at the first of the term should be here as early as the second or third, to make arrangements, get their books and stationery, get located in their seats and select desirable boarding places.

Write for full particulars of call 108, either phone, or call at the office any day in the week that is most convenient to you and I shall be glad to answer any questions or explain anything to you that you do not understand. If you are undecided what kind of school to attend or where to attend school, send for our catalog and journal.

You get a business education but once in life, you can't afford to make a mistake in selecting the school. There is as much difference between business colleges as there is between shoes, horses or men. The business college is a reflection of the ability, experience, energy and inspiration of its manager.

KANSAS CITY POLICE

DEMOCRATIC NEWSPAPERS LYING ABOUT DEPARTMENT.

The Kansas City police department, having been completely reformed and entirely divorced from partisan politics, the Democratic press, led by the St. Louis Republic, would have the people believe that it has become a part of the Republican city organization.

Of course that's a lie—one of the bold political lies now being circulated in lieu of honest campaign arguments. The Democratic press finds nothing in the true situation at Kansas City to condemn, so it must invent something to shoot at.

The real truth is that the police department at Kansas City furnished to the Democratic leaders an army of uniformed Democratic ward and precinct workers for many years. Since this army has been restored to the service of the people the Democratic politicians of Kansas City and of the state have been trying to make the people believe that it has been transformed into a Republican machine. More than half of the policemen being Democrats. It would not be an easy matter to make Republican machine men of them, if the Police Board wished to do so. As a matter of fact the policemen in Kansas City are under instructions to ignore politics and to give their time to police duties; and they are obeying their instructions, though it has been difficult to prevent some of the Democratic officers following a course of political meddling and activity to which they became accustomed under Democratic control.

Case Not Yet Disposed Of.
Democratic newspapers are proclaiming the Supreme Court decision in the Roach mandamus case a great victory for the Democrats. May-be-so—may-be-so. But wait till the people are heard from. The case was not disposed of by that decision. It was just opened up good. The arguments that count for a fair deal and a representative State Senate are yet to be heard, not by Democratic judges only but by the court of last resort in this state—the people. They will have an opinion to hand down, too—one that will go deeper into the merits of this controversy than the opinion of the Supreme Court goes into the difference between a legislative proposition and a proposed amendment to the Constitution.

Is Judge Graves Right?
Not content with assenting to the majority opinion of the Supreme Court in the Roach mandamus case Judge Graves, who was elected in 1908 to a full term on the Supreme Bench over his Republican opponent, Judge Cox, volunteered a separate concurring opinion in which he contends that the Secretary of State has the right to pass upon the constitutionality of a legislative measure or a constitutional amendment to be submitted under the initiative and referendum law. If Judge Graves is right then the quicker that law is repealed or carefully amended the better for the people. If a partisan Secretary of State can stand between citizens who propose legislation and the people who must vote upon measures submitted under the initiative and referendum law there is absolutely no good in the new law. It can only be used by citizens favored by the Secretary of State.

Couldn't Grab All of Them.
In making up the present senatorial districts of Missouri the Democratic State officials could not gerrymander all of the counties, because some of them are heavily Republican, and could not have been absorbed as to make more Democratic districts, so they were set aside as hopeless and allowed Republican representation in the Senate.

A glance at the gerrymandered map will show that the counties composing the present districts are not contiguous, as the Constitution requires; that they are not compact and not conveniently arranged, as the Constitution requires; but, on the contrary, they are arranged primarily to insure the election of Democratic senators.

The whole map is a reflection of the desperate and damnable scheme of the Democratic leaders to control the State Senate. It is doubtful whether politicians in any state in the Union have ever attempted a gerrymander of representative districts so palpably and desperately partisan and unfair.

It is a wonder that the people have submitted to it so long. But for the intervention of a partisan court they would undoubtedly undo this gerrymander and administer a stinging rebuke to the Democratic leaders who are responsible for it.

Our Humane Governor.
Putting young convicts in charge of substantial farmers to earn honest wages and to have a chance to reform and become good citizens, while under parole, is one of the many Hadley ideas that affect the hearts as well as the minds of good people. Our Governor's thoughts and aims take in the humble unfortunates as well as the prosperous business men. He has a way for caring for all classes.

It is to be regretted that Judge Lamm, the only Republican member of the Supreme Court, did not write an opinion in the Roach mandamus case. He could have said something quite interesting—no doubt about that. Perhaps he thought it would be love's labor lost. Judge Woodson's opinion is generally approved by able lawyers.
